Don't forget to vote on Thursday!

DON'T forget! Thursday, May 6, is polling day for the General Election AND Greenwich Council elections. Everyone in Greenwich who is registered to vote is urged to do so as part of our local democracy. Polling stations will open at 7am and close at 10pm. Your poll card will tell you your polling station. If you take it with you, it will help to speed up the procedure, but you don't need it to vote. Simply turn up at your polling station and give your name and address to the officials. If you are registered to vote they will give you the ballot paper(s) for you to take to the booth to cast your vote. You can vote for ONE candidate in the Parliamentary Election and up to THREE candidates in the council elections. If you spoil your ballot paper in any way it will not be counted. If you make a mistake you can take your ballot paper to the presiding officer and ask for another one. Voting will take place in Greenwich's three parliamentary constituencies - Eltham, Greenwich and Woolwich, and Erith and Thamesmead. The council elections will be to elect 51 councillors in 17 local wards. ●FOR more information about the elections go to www.greenwich.gov.uk/elect ●SEE next week's GT for all the election results

In my opinionMedia:
look behind

JUST because young people wear hoods does it mean they are trouble? Just because young people hang around in big groups of friends does it mean they want to harm someone?

Just because young people are perceived badly does it mean that every young person is out to cause trouble? No, but people won't know that unless they are told about it.

The media (the most powerful and influential source of information in the world) only focuses on the negative behaviour as that is what sells a story. They hardly ever focus on positive behaviour and that gives young people of today - the future of this country - a bad name.

As far as I am aware there are only a few charities that help reduce this stereotype/age boundary and even fewer locally. How are young people supposed to rectify the situation when they are not getting the recognition and attention they deserve?

There are also not a lot of chances for young people to prove their worth, and even those there are aren't covered by the press.

Everyone is more focused on trying to get the young people falling behind back on track, but they are abandoning the ones that are already acting as they should.

If the media were to print more stories on positive behaviour then maybe the people who do commit crimes will stop as they will not get the attention they are currently getting now and will not be able to live up to their "bad" name.

If the media stops giving us a bad name there may not be as many incidents to report on as young people will have a positive image to live up to instead.

So, if the media were to promote the positive stories rather than the negative ones, people wouldn't have such a negative view of the young people of today and they will start to realise that a lot of good goes on that is currently unnoticed.

Restaurant told to clean up its act

GREENWICH Council took steps to protect public health by closing a high street restaurant earlier this month.

The Itoshii Sushi Bar and restaurant, in Nelson Road, Greenwich, was shut down because of a rat and mouse infestation.

It was discovered by council environmental officers who made an unannounced visit to the restaurant following previous warnings about hygiene a month ago.

When they visited on April 20 environmental officers found evidence of mice and rats in the storeroom, kitchen and even inside the wok burner cooker. Restaurant operators Thai Chung Ltd were ordered to keep the premises closed until the pest infestations were controlled. The restaurant was allowed to reopen late on Friday, April 23, after intensive clean-up.

treatments.

Matthew Norwell, from the council's community safety and integrated enforcement team, said: "The council will continue to carry out unannounced visits to food businesses in order to safeguard customers' health. I would encourage all local food businesses to follow appropriate food hygiene standards to avoid having their business closed down or face prosecution."

The council is also offering advice, free seminars and coaching sessions to help businesses ensure they are complying with the law. Businesses can contact the council's environmental health team on 020-8921 8186.

The council's food hygiene is displayed on premises or you can visit www.greenwich.gov.uk/eatingout

The incredible hulks Tender loving care of battleships' remains

by Rod Kitson

THE shipbreaking industry's murky depths are rarely dredged. Naval historians, it seems, would rather preserve the memory of great ships as warriors and workhorses, not scuppered for parts on jetties and slipways.

In their pomp the Royal Navy's flagship wooden battleships were revered by a nation in love with maritime adventure. But what happened to them after becoming outdated and out of favour?

While many of Britain's finest floats met their end as lumbering hulks and prison ships sadly rotting the length and breadth of the Thames, others were simply stripped of their facets and reused in a myriad of rebirths.

And it's only at low tide that parts of three of the finest vessels of their era are exposed as gangplanks of a long disused shipbreaking yard off Anchor and Hope Lane in Charlton.

The laborious task of unearthing the ships and deciding where they end up, falls to archeologists from the Thames Discovery Programme.

TDP's Elliott Wragg told GT: "The structure was identified a decade ago, but lack of money meant that investigative work came to a standstill. Now with the help of local volunteers we are cleaning and drawing the timbers to ascertain from which ships the parts came."

The oak and elm timbers that graced the magnificent vessels of Henry VIII's ships, Admiral Nelson's fleet at Trafalgar and some of the earliest iron ships were all

HAUL ON THE BOWLINE: Elliott Wragg at work on the structure in Anchor and Hope Lane, below he gets to work cleaning the timbers disposed off at various sites down the Thames, including Charlton.

Elliott said: "With the help of records from the Maritime Museum we have dated the structure as being built between 1904 and 1905. We have identified pieces from the '1st Rate' battleships the Duke Of Wellington and large bits of iron from The Ajax, as well as timbers from HMS Edgar, a 2nd rate ship with 91 guns which set sail from Woolwich in 1860."

When 'The Duke' was broken up in 1904, the sought after and intricate woodwork was used not only used on the river. "Liberty's of London boasts furniture carved from the hull of the 131-gun Duke of Wellington," added Elliot.

At the date of its launch in 1852, The Duke was the largest warship in the world. Twice the size of Nelson's Victory, she saw action in the Crimean War and was fitted with both a steam engine and sails - typical of an age of rapid technological change.

Eventually this revolutionary period in naval development led to the use of more powerful shells and the need for ironclad battleships to counter this. As a wooden ship, the Duke of Wellington soon became obsolete and was eventually broken up in SE7 along with The Ajax, The Hannibal and The Edgar at Charlton.

Make a meal of it!

TV gardener helps pupils enjoy food they grow

GREEN-FINGERED experts including television gardener Diarmuid Gavin have been giving pupils at Linton Mead primary school some top tips on how to grow their own vegetables - and then turn them into healthy meals.

A special gardening day was held last Wednesday (April 28) when two trainers from the Growing Greenwich project ran a morning workshop with 50 youngsters from Year 3 at the Thamesmead school.

Helen Carey and Mary-Clair Lawlor talked about where the pupils' breakfasts and other food comes from, and showed them how to plant different vegetable and flower seeds.

Celebrity gardener Diarmuid joined the pupils for lunch and was shown around the school by eight-year-olds Chloe, Asanda and Teni. They said "Diarmuid told us this was a really nice school for us to be in."

In the afternoon he helped pupils dig over one of the school's raised beds ready for sowing and planting out seedlings. "They took me to every raised bed to show me what they had been growing, and I've been to see the different seedlings they have grown in pots," said

by Dick
Townsend-Smith

Diarmuid. "They wanted to tell me about their strawberries, and how fruit forms. They have been taught very well at this school, and they are fantastic kids, really proud and happy at what they have done. They are just brilliant."

His visit coincided with the school's involvement with the Growing Greenwich project, which visits schools and community groups in the borough to show people how to grow their own food, create their own compost and get success without the use of pesticides.

Diarmuid is the figurehead for the Let's Grow campaign being run by the Morrisons supermarket chain, which provides schools with gardening tools, seeds and Wellington boots in exchange for vouchers collected by shoppers. Parents, teachers and families collected more than 10,000 vouchers for the school in Central Way.

All the 485 children at the school are involved in the gardening project as part of the spring curriculum, and grow fruit and vegetables in the school's specially-made raised beds. Even the 100 children in the adjoining nursery school take part, and have their own raised bed.

"We are making the children aware of healthy food, such as growing their own carrots," said headteacher Linda Bird. "It's all part of a healthier lifestyle - healthy eating, healthy food and even growing seedlings in paper pots which are environmentally-friendly and can be recycled. The children are also filling old tyres with compost to use for growing. The Morrisons initiative underpins all this."

Lessons in healthy eating have been led by teaching assistant Tracey Outteridge, who has been explaining nutritional values and the theory of cooking to 10 and 11 year olds in Year 6.

"We give them ideas of what they could do for themselves at home, and it's good to see them progress after just a few weeks," she said.

● GROWING Greenwich is led by Davey Haydock-Wilson from Greenwich Co-operative Development Agency (GCDA) and trained teacher Helen Carey. Its cookery expert, Mary-Clair Lawlor, will be running a six-week gardening course at Linton Mead from May 18 for 16 children from Year 3.

When it really is beautiful

LOVE football? I write in response to the 'LoveFootball Festival.' I think this is a great opportunity for people of different nationalities to come together over a love of football.

There won't be a problem of accessibility as along with the male tournament there is a female and disabled tournament also, so anyone who has a love of football can come along and play. It isn't just people that are interested in football that it caters for; journalists can also take part in a media tournament. As the Olympics are just around the corner it is fitting that such as prestigious event is held in our host borough. I hope the tournament is a great success and I recommend anyone who is interested to attend.

There are times these days when the 'Beautiful Game' doesn't look so beautiful, but an event like this will help to redress the balance.

STAR LETTER

Snappy manner

THIS morning I went for a stroll to the peninsula and was very impressed with the façade of the new Ravensbourne College which incorporates the mathematical designs of Roger Penrose. I stopped to photograph it so that I could send the picture to my brother in Stockport who is a mathematician. I was immediately accosted by a black-suited, very intimidating man with an O2 badge who demanded to know why I was taking photographs. I was astonished and appalled that this person felt he had the right to stop and question a lifelong resident going about his lawful business.

T. J. Slack, Greenwich

● DUE to The O2 being such a high profile landmark we ask customers wishing to use professional cameras to get permission from us. We then provide them with a permission form so they can take pictures or film freely. We are disappointed, however, that Mr Slack felt our team did not approach him in a manner in which they should have. At The O2 we pride ourselves on our high levels of customer service and we will be investigating with our security team how this happened.

A Pit Bull to look 'hard'

UNBELIEVABLE! Why has this woman (GT letters, April 27) even got a Pit Bull?! Hello! It is a dog on the dangerous dogs act list.. And now it has had puppies...great! So more illegal dogs in the area. Just great! There is no reason to own a dog of this type (that is potentially as dangerous as this breed) other than to look hard! Why have the police given her back this dog? There was a reason for the dangerous dogs act and these dogs should have been "phased" out. Why are these breeds still around? Can some one tell me? Greenwich Police?

Andrew Kenny, Shooters Hill

● THE decision to return the dog to the owner was not made by the police. This decision was made by the court in accordance with the Dangerous Dogs (Amendment) Act of 1997. The owner had to comply with a number of conditions before the dog was returned to her.

THIS SPORTING LIFE

WHERE would we be without sport? I know there are a few people who have no sporting interests whatsoever and resort to describing sports as played by "a load of silly men running around a field", even though most of those sports are now played and enjoyed by women too. Thankfully they are outnumbered by a million to one and the rest of us have an unbeatable summer of sport ahead - Test matches, Open championships, Wimbledon, the Derby and - oh, yes - the World Cup in South Africa. Many of us played these sports at modest levels and miss them greatly, but how great to see the top players in action.

Apprentice joins fundraiser for Chernobyl victims

APPRENTICE Dale Mallon is one of 20 local workers making a special delivery to villagers still struggling to cope after the Chernobyl nuclear disaster.

The team of workers, from social housing maintenance company 'Mears,' are aiming to deliver toiletries, toys, food, clothing, bedding, a new fire engine and improved school facilities when they visit Chernobyl this month.

The town in Ukraine made headlines 24 years ago when an accident at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant sent a plume of radioactive fallout into the atmosphere forcing the evacuation of large areas of Ukraine, Belarus and Russia. Today more than 500,000 children continue to live in heavily contaminated and radiation-filled areas.

Eighteen-year-old Dale, who is studying for an NVQ in Maintenance at Shooters Hill College, is the first Mears, which carried out a similar operation to Sri Lanka last year.

Dale, who had to raise £2,000 to fund his trip, collected some of the money by organising a concert with his band Black Market Fire.

The group performed with other local bands for the Belarus Benefit Concert at the Greenwich Admirals rugby club, Eltham, on April 23.

Dale said: "We raised £350 and we were really pleased, we got a real adrenalin rush from it."

"I am extremely excited ahead of this trip and I hope to gain self satisfaction in helping people out there."

And he added: "Judging from photographs of the Chernobyl, it is very much unappealing to the eye and I hope to utilise my plumbing, brickwork, painting and decorating skills amongst others to make a real difference when I am out there."

Mears' customer and community projects manager, Sandra Butler, said: "Chernobyl is in an area which has been forgotten, despite still needing a lot of help and support. Our objective is to support people within one of the regions most affected by the Chernobyl disaster."

HILLREACH RECEPTION: just over two miles into the marathon and the runners get a big boost from the Karen Dawson pirates

The Mara-fun!

Karen goes flat out to support the runners

by Peter Cordwell

THERE were 75 people who enjoyed the London Marathon every bit as much as the 36,000-plus runners.

They crammed into every nook and cranny of Karen Dawson's four-bedroom flat on Hillreach, Woolwich, that has become one of the big race's favourite landmarks. And the overspill could always climb aboard the pirate ship just a plank away from her balcony.

"It was a fantastic day and we all loved every minute of it," said Karen. "We had friends and family from all over the place, including America. The marathon is just the best!"

Karen started supporting the marathon with balloons and bunting in 1999 and it's grown every year since. This year's theme was 'Pirates' with young and old in costumes from Karen's Harlequin fancy dress and party shop in Lee.

"This was the biggest one ever," said Karen, 46. "When my dad was still alive he would do a lot of the painting and now we've got a friend, Tom Jones, who is just amazing. He's one of those people who might not have the qualifications but can do anything and everything he turns his hand to, including the pirates' ship this year.

"We started all this because the marathon was just below us and we also had people coming in the shop to run in fancy dress. We cheered on all these wonderful people, then we thought we should do something

Clean-up team goes that extra mile

CLEANING teams from Greenwich Council went the extra mile to clear the borough's streets after the London Marathon. Forty staff took part in teams divided along the route. They collected around 18 tonnes of recyclable rubbish, mainly plastic water bottles dropped by the tens of thousands of runners. It was almost twice as much as last year. This was taken to the council's recycling facility at Thamesmead - and police were able to re-open roads by 2pm. Chris Wood, director for neighbourhood services, told GT: "We are very proud of our association with this fabulous event. It's a huge logistical challenge for everyone involved in organising and I'd like to thank our own cleaning teams for their role in ensuring everything went smoothly. "It was a brilliant day for athletes and spectators alike, followed by a speedy clean-up."

slightly different and it all progressed from there. People assumed they were passing a pub but it was just my flat. I've got a friend with MS who gets on the balcony and cheers them all on. We've got pensioners and little kids, it's wonderful atmosphere."

The idea of running the marathon is a non-starter for Karen but her marathon effort, supporting the thousands of runners every year, is as important as any other. Her friend Brendan Lanigan told GT: "The marathon party at Karen's flat is one of the highlights of the whole event for us. She deserves great credit for the enthusiasm she shows every year."

The event has also prevented Karen moving in recent years. "My husband Pete and I keep intending to move but then we think we can't leave the marathon. I think the people who run it are absolutely fantastic. We always stay out an extra hour and a half for the stragglers."

Six runners raised hundreds of pounds for the Mayor of Greenwich charities - MacMillan Cancer Support, Volunteer Centre Greenwich and Greenwich Mencap. Natalie Seboia told GT: "I really enjoyed the day. I got a burst of energy near the end and thought I could have done better than 6hrs 10mins - but there's always next year!"

LIGHTEN UP

I'm light...fantastic!

WORK has taken me away from home for most of the last month and getting to the gym has been a challenge. To counteract this, I set to thinking of ways that I could exercise while travelling. After a quick web search, I discovered that 12-15 minutes of skipping and 22-25 minutes of swimming both burn around 200 calories. Armed with this information, I headed to my local sports shop and invested in a skipping rope and a pair of swimming shorts. I was soon able to put my shorts to good use, as one hotel I stayed in boasted a swimming pool. I was blessed that it was completely empty, which meant that I could swim widthways and avoid the deep end all together. I have no confidence in deep water and the last thing I wanted was to sink! Being unceremoniously trawled out like a stranded whale would not look good! I'd be lying if I said that my foray into skipping was equally successful. Please don't let the innocent appearance of a skipping rope fool you. It may look harmless, but it can be lethal! I foolishly decided to spice up one skipping session by simultaneously running on the spot and I quickly became the owner of two strained calf muscles! And, even worse than the aching, was having to admit that I hadn't obtained my injury through something macho like mountain biking or rugby, but through a task that most girls abandon by the age of nine - skipping! However, all of the aching felt worth it when I stepped on the scales on April 7. 11 stone 1 lb. I had lost a total of two stone. I was on cloud nine! Not only had I hit my weight loss target but my BMI was 25! I am no longer overweight! Back in January I never imagined that my fitness plan would turn out as wonderfully as it has. My body shape has transformed before my eyes. The man boobs that I so detested have shrunk and my tummy - my Achilles heel - has slimmed down to a new flatter shape. I am also much fitter; over the Easter holidays I was in Greenwich Park playing games with friends and I was able to run around for ages without gasping for breath at the end! I have had a real boost to my self esteem. I used to be ashamed of my flabby body and I planned every outfit to hide and conceal it. Now I am really proud of my new slimmer body, and rather than using clothes to mask my shape I'm now using them to display it! The real seal of approval came when a friend saw

'In fact, it has been those words of encouragement that have kept me going - thank-you to everyone who has encouraged me by praising my progress or by sharing their experiences, all of that has pushed me on'

me in the street recently and immediately sent me a text saying "You're looking pretty slim!" Bingo!! In fact, it has been those words of encouragement that have kept me going - thank-you to everyone who has encouraged me by praising my progress or by sharing their experiences, all of that has pushed me on. What's more, nothing has motivated me more than knowing that if I pig out and gain weight thousands of readers will know about it! I must also thank the staff at the Greenwich leisure centres who have encouraged me all the way through my journey. Of course I've had my tough moments during the last three months, and I have had several days where I've succumbed to temptation and my diet has gone out of the window. I'm only human after all. But, on the whole I have stuck to my daily 1700 calorie limit and exercised regularly and it's paid off spectacularly. I'm thrilled! It's been hard work and there have been no overnight fixes, but it truly has been worth it to see my body transforming. I also feel fantastic in the knowledge that I am now much healthier too. As this column has proved, by eating less and exercising more it really is possible to lighten up!

ROLLER COASTER: the Hurst clan took advantage of the offer to skate for free at The O2

Free and easy!

A FREE session at The O2 was the perfect introduction to roller skating for Kereen Hurst and her entourage. The Plumstead teacher took advantage of the offer on Sunday, April 25. All people had to do was take a bill along to prove Greenwich residency. Kereen told GT: "I heard about the roller disco from my aunt Jennifer and she joined us to do it for the first time. She would never have done it otherwise."

Kereen, a key stage two teacher at Nightingale primary school in Woolwich, added: "I'll definitely go again, we had a great time. These offers are a really good idea because they get people out of the house. My aunt had never skated before but she was fine and afterwards she said she would go again. We've been to quite a few events at The O2. We've been to the rain forests and to the beach. The children also loved the gymnastic display. We took the DLR from Woolwich and then the train, only 20 minutes. I can't wait to go there for the Olympics in 2012. We're doing a project in our class."

LONDON BOROUGH OF GREENWICH

The Greenwich (Electric Vehicle Charging Places) (No. 1) Experimental Order 2010
The Greenwich (Residents and Business Parking Places No. 2) (Amendment No. 23) Experimental Order 2010
The Greenwich (Parking Places) (No. 2) (Amendment No. 14) Experimental Order 2010
The Greenwich (Millennium Village) (Free Parking Places) (Amendment No. 4) Experimental Order 2010
The Greenwich (Free Parking Places) (Disabled Persons) (Amendment No. 22) Experimental Order 2010

- NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Greenwich Borough Council (hereinafter referred to as "the Council") on 30th April 2010 made the above-mentioned Orders under section 9 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, as amended. The Orders will come into operation on 1st May 2010.
- The general effect of the Orders will be, on an experimental basis, to designate on-street charging places for electric vehicles (which, in the context of this notice, include plug-in hybrid electric vehicles) in certain locations in the borough which will operate as follows:
 - the charging places will be available for electric vehicles only, "at any time" and without payment of charge, provided that the vehicle is connected to the charging post via a supplied charging lead (access to the charging post socket is granted through membership of the charging place scheme - see paragraph 3 below);
 - electric vehicles will be restricted to a maximum stay of four hours at a charging place during the "limited stay hours" of that charging place. These hours will be signed at the charging place and in most cases will be identical to the operating hours of the controlled parking zone, where applicable. Outside of the limited stay hours an electric vehicle may be left for an unlimited period.
- Owners of electric vehicles who live or work in Greenwich will be eligible to apply for membership of the charging place scheme. Members will receive personalised key fobs to access the charging post's facilities and a coded charging lead to connect to the charging post socket. The membership fee will be £100 plus VAT (£117.50) for the first 12 months and £25 + VAT (£29.38) for each subsequent year thereafter to renew membership. An administration fee of £2.50 will be charged for membership payments made by debit or credit card. Registered members will be eligible to use a number of specified charging points across London.
- The charging places will be located as follows:
 - in Eltham town centre, on the north side of Messener Place, opposite No. 9 Messener Place (2 bays of total length 11 metres); a maximum stay of 4 hours would apply between 8:00 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Monday to Saturday;
 - in Greenwich town centre:
 - on the north-west side of Blissett Street, outside No. 101 Royal Hill (2 bays of total length 11 metres); the existing shared-use parking place outside No. 101 Royal Hill would be shifted 5 metres south-westward to abut the existing residents' parking place outside 21 to 47 Blissett Street;
 - on the west side of Horseferry Place, immediately north of its junction with Thames Street (2 bays of total length 11 metres); the existing residents' parking place would be shortened by 3.35 metres; and
 - on the north-west side of Road Street, outside No. 92 Road Street (2 bays of total length 10.5 metres); the existing metered parking place at this location would be shortened to one bay for which a maximum stay of 4 hours would apply between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on Monday to Saturdays and between 9am and 4pm on Sundays; and
 - on the peninsula, on the north-west side of John Harrison Way, opposite the junction with Teal Street (2 bays of total length 12 metres); the existing 2-hour free parking place at this location would be shortened by 12 metres; a maximum stay of 4 hours would apply between 9:00 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. throughout the week.
- The Orders will also correct discrepancies between on-street markings and existing Order designations.
- The Orders provide that in pursuance of section 10(2) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, the Assistant Director of Strategic Transportation at Greenwich Council, or some person authorised by him, may, if it appears to him or that person essential in the interests of the expedition, convenience and safe movement of traffic, or of the provision of suitable and adequate parking facilities on the highway, or for preventing or improving the amenities of the area through which any road affected by the Orders runs, modify or suspend the Orders or any provision thereof, save that no modification shall make an addition.
- Further information may be obtained by telephoning Strategic Transportation on 020 8921 5678.
- The Orders and other documents giving more detailed particulars of the Orders are available for inspection during normal office hours until the Orders cease to have effect at the Directorate of Regeneration, Enterprise and Skills, Strategic Transportation, Greenwich Council, Crown Building, 48 Woolwich New Road, SE18 6HQ.
- If any person wishes to question the validity of the Orders or of any of the provisions contained therein on the grounds that they are not within the powers conferred by the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, or that any requirement of that Act or of any instrument made under that Act has not been complied with, that person may, within six weeks from the date on which the Orders were made, apply for that purpose to the High Court.
- The Council will consider in due course whether the provisions of the Orders should be continued in operation indefinitely by means of permanent Orders made under sections 6, 45, 46, 49 and 134 (as appropriate) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984. Any person may object to the making of the permanent Orders for the purpose of such indefinite continuation, within a period of six months beginning with the date on which the experimental Orders come into force or, if the Orders are varied by other Orders or modified pursuant to section 10 (2) of the 1984 Act, beginning with the date on which the variation or modification or the latest variation or modification comes into operation. Any such objection must be made in writing and must state the grounds on which it is made and be sent to the Council's agents: Traffic Orders Team, Project Centre, 148 St Cross Street, London, EC1N 8BA (quoting reference PCL/TMO/PJ1099).
- Persons objecting to the Orders should be aware that in view of the Local Government (Access to Information) Act 1985, this Council would be legally obliged to make any comments received in response to this Notice, open to public inspection.

Cissie on the move...at 103!

by Pat Greenwood

KIDBROOKE'S oldest resident has just moved to a new address - at the age of 103!

But, sadly, phenomenal Cissie Lawrence only had to re-locate to Time Court residential home in Woodland Terrace at Christmas, because her beloved daughter Beryl died last summer. "Cissie is just amazing!" said Time Court's activity manager Christel Thomas, who includes her in everything that's going on.

"Sometimes I do a bit of painting in the arts and crafts," said Cissie. "We go out shopping in the minibus, and there's bingo. They are all making me more than welcome."

Cissie was born Cissie Beaton on March 9, 1907, in Stepney, East London. "My father was a shoemaker. We used to have good shoes," said the lady who has always prided herself on her appearance, and getting her hair done regularly.

She and her two brothers lived with dad George and mum Christina in "the buildings" immediately opposite her future husband, Stan. "His family had a six-roomed house," she recalled. "We were married from there and we moved in there afterwards."

Stan was a motor mechanic, who took his "beau" out in a blue

Me & my borough

Austin during their courtship. Ultimately, after a spell repairing vehicles during World War Two, he had his own garage in Stepney.

In recent years, widow Cissie has lived with her daughter in Kidbrooke. She puts much of her longevity down to "keeping my house and my garden spotless".

She worked as a doctor's assistant in her teens - even learning from her employer how to make up medicines - but she's been a lifelong housewife ever since her marriage.

She's never had an afternoon nap. "Oh no. I'm still up at about 7am, she said. "You could always eat your dinner off our kitchen-floor at home. Then I was outside, using my red door-step polish and scrubbing, and doing my windows."

Cissie has never been a drinker. "It's never appealed to me. I'll just take a sip to be sociable. I prefer water and I drink a lot of it," she told GT.

But she enjoys her food, still has her own teeth, has good hearing, and isn't on any medication. She's definitely not a telly-addict. "I prefer listening to classical music," she told us. She also likes to glance at the newspaper every day.

SUPER CISSIE: the amazing Kidbrooke woman who is settling into her new home after giving up hers way past the century mark

She admits she used to love going out shopping with Beryl - and Christel carries on the tradition for the 50-resident home. "We're out every Tuesday in the minibus," she told us. "And, on Thursdays, Cissie joins in the chair-based exercises, and every fortnight we go to the community centre next door to here for their tea-dances. We give the people we see 'out on the floor' our own marks out of 10 - just like 'Strictly' on the television!"

Cissie, who had to lose her right leg to osteo-arthritis a little while ago, says she desperately misses daughter Beryl and their trips out together with the wheelchair.

"I was 102 when I had to give up my home," she said, "but I call this place my home now."

● GO along to Time Court on Saturday morning, May 15, from 9am, and, all being well, you'll meet Cissie at their fund-raising table sale of books, cakes and clothes. Everyone is welcome.

Beverley Parkinson left London and is now enjoying life in Greenwich Connecticut. Here she writes about ...

These changing times

ASTROLOGICAL changes are certainly in the air – which is an ongoing focus at the Royal Observatory and also here in Connecticut. I attended an evening lecture through Greenwich Adult and Continuing Education, at the Greenwich High School, entitled 'Coping with these challenging times from an Astrology Perspective'. The class was taught by Frank Don, who has been a professional astrologer for 30 years. His clients include entertainment personalities, sports figures and government officials in both the UK and the USA! Don spoke about how the planets are aligning for an exciting new era as we enter into the 'Age of Aquarius' – and how we are in a state of flux as the earth is literally shaking us up for the change, describing all the natural disasters that are happening around the world. He explained how, due to planetary alignment, we are entering a transformational time, of new beginnings. The main tool Don suggested we use to survive these times is 'to be flexible' – both physically and mentally. Be prepared to adapt and move with the changes around us, be open-minded to the miracles that will occur, listen to our inner voices and don't give in to the feelings of fear. According to Don, advanced computer technology means we are entering into a creative phase of individuality, where people 'can' achieve their creative goals and be less dependent on big organizations for their success. Additional 'tips' to surviving these planetary changes is to consolidate and save money (as he doesn't think we're out of the recession just yet!) watch for more bizarre weather patterns, which will affect food supplies, and to watch for negativity in others, which will increase stress levels and anxiety. Create your own space and sanctuary to recharge batteries or take time to meditate. We need to pull together more, like in post-war UK! The end of the class was opened up for questions, where I asked if there were any 'dates' or 'timelines' we should be aware of for future weather disasters – Don suggested we look for high tides during full moons, more earthquakes, tornadoes in the spring and a hot summer ahead. He finished by saying there is no instruction manual for these changing times, instead we must listen to our intuitions and live our lives with integrity. Write our plans in pencil and be prepared to use a rubber to change them. Astrological education and teachings are becoming more mainstream and more acceptable, and how great that we live in places that accept and understand such thought processes. Despite what you might personally think, it's fascinating to see how planetary activities make a difference to us here on earth. We can't deny how the tides are affected by the moon – so why can't we believe that earthquakes, tornados and other weather patterns are affected by the planets too? Thus it's worth taking a moment to think about possible changing times ...

The 'Supporters'

The Royal "supporters" are figures that support the shield and take the form of animals, birds, human figures or mythical beasts. Their origin is purely decorative and can be personally relevant to the council involved.

YOUR views

The current Greenwich Crest

- The Hour Glass and Stars represent Greenwich being the place from which the standard of time is taken and the Observatory from which astronomical calculations are made. Would YOU want to retain these or go for something different, more modern?

- The three cannon represent the long association with the Royal Arsenal at Woolwich. Should the Royal crest mirror the borough's naval and military history?

Tell us what you think about the Royal borough crest

CREATING a new crest for Greenwich when it becomes a Royal Borough will be one of the traditions of this historic period - and YOU can give us your views on what you think. The new crest - some might prefer an updated version of the current Greenwich crest - is part of the tradition and protocol of the elevated status. The change won't happen overnight and even the old Metropolitan crest of Woolwich, dating back over a century until it was replaced by the current Greenwich Council logo, will continue to be seen in and around Woolwich town centre. The richness of the borough's naval and military history also adds to the choices available to residents whose ideas will be considered in choosing the Royal Crest for Greenwich.

Two of the most important aspects of the crest - and the ones in which residents will probably take most interest - are:

- Two 'Supporters' - the figures standing on either side of the

WHAT should the crest include?

Evidence of Greenwich's Royal status and history? If so, should this concentrate on the Royal heyday of Greenwich and the Tudor Dynasty? Evidence of Greenwich as the home of time and the location of the first Royal Observatory? Evidence of Greenwich's relationship with the army and navy? Should this be reflected in the identity of the supporters? Should the crest and Wellington something more symbolic - such as Neptune to represent the sea? Should there be evidence of the borough's relationship with the sea, with discovery and exploration?

Send YOUR ideas on the Royal Crest for Greenwich to the Communications Team, Woolwich Town Hall, SE18 6PW

The Motto...

MOTTOES appeared in heraldry in the 14th Century but were not generally seen until the 17th Century. They were usually associated with particular events or as a rallying cry in times of war. Historically, the motto appears in Latin or French, but more recently English has been used as crests have been modernised.

What do YOU think the Greenwich motto should be?

current motto is: 'We govern by serving'. Has it stood the test of time or should there be something completely different, more modern?

The Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea's motto is 'Quam bonum in unum habitare' ('What a good thing it is to live together'). The motto for Greenwich will become part of its historic character so there's bound to be great interest in the words chosen. Coats of Arms reflect a visual story of historic achievements - like those of the soon-to-be Royal Greenwich.

Greenwich Council's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 183

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Council's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed.

Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to:

For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time.

For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

Band

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the council must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

1 Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, get an application form by phoning the Access and Allocations Section on 020 8921 2941. Or pick up a form from any neighbourhood office.

2 Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Council about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

3 Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.greenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free in either your neighbourhood housing office, library or UK Online centre.

4 Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Council's website

MASTER OF CEREMONIES:
Bryan Chambers (above) and below Wayne (1) and partner Mele

An organisation set up by a pair of DJs is on a mission to get clubbers parting with their cash, and partying for a bunch of good causes

WIN! TWO TICKETS

Scene has a pair of tickets to Dance Aid Goes Oldskool to give away. Just answer this question: Where does the event take place?

Ages 18+ only. Comp ends May 18. Email name, age, address, phone no. to competitions@greenwich.gov.uk or postcard marked 'Oldskool Comp' to Woolwich Town Hall, Wellington Street SE18 6PW reason – to have a dance, and then every penny goes straight to the charity. The money raised will go to the NSPCC and the Cystic Fibrosis Trust, and past events have helped set up the charity's Dance Aid Academies, which are based at some of London's top football clubs. "We bought our first set of DJ equipment and opened an academy in Crystal Palace – it's a free of charge service for deprived children", Wayne says. "My day job now is teaching at the academy. It's for the under achievers who are starting to be a bit naughty at school because they are underachieving who don't really get a chance to do this. "We're trying to show them way as fundraisers. Wayne Eldridge is co-founder of Dance Aid, a charity which started life with a close shave for a pal who was game for a laugh...

"It all began in 2006, as a bit of a joke," explains Wayne. "We had a really hairy friend who owned a radio station and we said we'd wax him on live air. So I stuck a bit of gaffa tape on his arm and ripped it off! He said that if we raised £5,000 we could do his whole back – which we did!" The venture quickly became more serious, and since then Wayne and partner Mete Alpasakarya have called in favours from their DJing days to fill out Ministry of Sound, Pacha and the SE1 club twice over.

"Our total to date is £350,000, and we've given every single penny of it away," enthused Wayne. "One hundred percent is what goes to the charity and everyone on the night works for nothing." Wayne's passion for the charity has led to the loss of two jobs, because "when it comes to you giving up a bit of your time, they don't like it," and his commitment sees the next event, Dance Aid Goes Oldskool, at That Club on Tunnel Avenue on May 29. "We're going 'oldskool' – a proper old style 'rave-up'," he added. "We've got some of the biggest names in the business – Rat Pack, Slipmatt and Jumping Jack Frost playing a bit of Drum 'n' Bass. There's Matt Jam Lamont and Pied Piper, and upstairs is club classics – Brandon Block, Alex P - and yet to confirm Seb Fontaine. "Our motto is 'Rave for a reason' – they've come in for a how they can change things now – before it's too late." At the end of the course, students get to make their own music and put it on an album which is performed by the class, mixing the tracks live on local radio. "It's just so rewarding, and to be honest, getting sacked from my old job has turned into a godsend. I love what I do. It's a lot of hard work, but the feeling we get from doing it is amazing. We're doing something to help people get on – it's like we say: 'Get on and mix' – a double meaning: learning to mix records and mix with other people." Holding the courses at football grounds engages the troubled youngsters in a different way, says Wayne, and there are plans for an academy in the borough. "We're looking to open at Charlton next, then AFC Wimbledon, Tottenham, Arsenal – Chelsea's already in the bag – all under the Dance Aid Academy banner."

Give us a clue...

No idea is a great idea

TWO friends canvass people in the street on what kind of play would suit the two of them best.

Lisa is disabled while Rachael, very much taller than her friend, is not. The result – No Idea, a play which appeared for one night at Greenwich Theatre on Sunday, April 25. It was a wonderfully funny, poignant and thought-provoking production which has emerged from Improbable Theatre's Associate Artist Project. The play is about how the public perceive Lisa Hammond and Rachael Spence, and their show consists of a series of representations of the opinions, ranging from the dismissive to the patronising. Lisa was almost inevitably cast by many in a comedy role because of her 'cheeky face', which helped create the show's hilariously acerbic, Bill Bailey-type song. No Idea – clearly a comment on the quality of the ideas people put forward – is a great idea that challenges stereotypes to the extent that individuals in the receptive audience must have been affected even if they considered themselves

A SHOT AT THE BIG TIME: Lisa (r) and Rachael

(like our little party) divorced from the "Does she take sugar?" types. Patronising attitudes were parodied brilliantly and mercilessly by two people who are clearly sick of them. The ending of one of Jack Nicholson's lesser films – A Few Good Men – is used to illustrate how disabled people had to be kept away from the 'pit of despair' for their own good. Rachael simply stated that she didn't care about Lisa's disability. Lisa, who sometimes uses a wheelchair, liked her for that. Theatre director James Haddrell deserves a lot of the credit for snapping up No Idea from a showcase he attended in Manchester. He obviously has an eye for quality and I can't wait for the second one from the same source, due at Greenwich in September. Meanwhile, No Idea is due for a run at The Young Vic in July. If you missed this one, as most of you did, you won't regret making the effort to get to Waterloo to see it.

Paul Weller hopes to Wake Up The Nation with his his most experimental album to date

mission statement that sees Paul Weller genuinely rejuvenated, picking up where 22 Dreams – his 2008 return to form – left off.

That is to say, it's with genuine joie de vivre that the 51-year-old attacks his latest batch of songs, and not in the apparently engineered rage of As Is Now (2005), an album that failed both to recapture his punk output or shake the artistic apathy of the previous decade. On his latest offering Weller finds himself tracking experimental territory, as well as throwing the occasional trademark grump to keep the aging Fred Perry-wearers happy.

It's only on opener Moonshine that the concession to a safer audience is made, one to snag the lads 'n' dads who want to shout along to The Eton Rifles, perhaps. But it is an invitation to the Jam acolytes to leave the comfort of the hits, for an altogether more interesting world.

Weller's reverence to the Beatles is well documented, and psychedelia reminiscent of the Fab's seminal Revolver is peppered across the record, the backwards loops of Find The Torch Burn The Plans in particular chimes of Tomorrow Never Knows. In a knowing wink to modernity though, this time it's not guitars and tape that are rewound, but synths that get the reverse treatment. It succeeds because it doesn't feel gratuitous, but an integral part of the song, and not the naval gazing that it could have descended in to. Another stand out is Fast Car - Slow Traffic, surfing a full gamut of sonic textures deftly applied from the Woking man's extensive palette, culminating in descending pianos – seemingly discordant – which are snatched from the air before crashing to a climax. WUTN is undeniably retro in parts, but Weller has never made a secret of his fascination with pop's golden age. And it's his attitude of crafting songs rather than relying on studio trickery that has kept him in the public conscience for over three decades. There are shades of Motown here too, particularly on No Tears To Cry – thankfully with a bundle more class than the sad parodies of Duffy et al the Winehouse-wagon jumpers of the noughties. There are elements of rockabilly and jazz, and stranger still is Pieces Of A Dream that stalks, of all people, a So-era Peter Gabriel. The 16 tracks zip by at breakneck pace, with not a dud among them. Up The Dosage the most successful melting pot of all. Its new wave feel sees Weller reference not only his first band (David Watts) but there are shades of Blondie in the white-funk bass groove, and darker moments that hint at Joy Division. Add a couple of tempo changes and an Arabic outro and it effortlessly becomes the record's crowning jewel. WUTN is the sound of Weller really letting go, his take on a mash-up – a mix tape of his favourite sounds and songs, but where others mix and sample others' work, he's penned the lot himself.

American bloke

Idol cast off puts out a record

AMERICAN Idol finally got a finalist who was completely, utterly contemporary, aware of what's hip in music and culture and aware of how music is made and consumed, never seeming to try to follow fads or set trends, just embodying the time when Adam Lambert came along. Mercifully, he came in second to Kris Allen, for if he came in first he may have had to tame his self-styled glamazon ways. A second place finish allowed Lambert to come out of the closet and indulge in his penchant for theatre on his debut album For Your Entertainment. He takes inspiration the likes of Queen and Bowie and from watching old MTV videos on YouTube. He takes it all at face value, mixing up arena rock guitars, new wave, disco, operatic overdubs with a constant electro pulse, glassy modern R&B, and the vague Euro strains of new millennium teen pop.

All this makes For Your Entertainment very modern in a way few mainstream pop albums are in 2010, whether they're products of the American Idol machine or not. Pink, Lady GaGa, Muse's Matthew Bellamy, and Justin Hawkins of the Darkness have all contributed to the album.

All these major artists write to Adam's theatrical image and big personality. They all give him some truly terrific pop tunes including Hawkins' glorious, goofy opener 'Music Again', Dr. Luke's cool strutting title track, Pink's pained 'Whataya Want from Me' and Lady GaGa's terrific disco 'Fever'. GaGa wisely goes so far as to keep the object of his affection male in her song so as not to conceal his sexuality and true self.

Lambert sounds larger than life on these, just like he wants to be, and if there's no sense of danger here, at least there's a lot of pure pop pleasure, more than any immediate post-Idol album has ever before delivered.

Irons in the fire

Robert Downey Jr. is Tony Stark in Iron Man 2, in a sequel not set for the scrapheap

COMIC book spin-offs have proven to be a rich mine of material for today's film makers and Marvel Films are top of the heap. Following last year's smash hit Iron Man, we have the long-awaited (at least by me) sequel Iron Man 2. There is something hugely watchable about the hero Robert Downey Jr. Could it be that like Tony Stark (Iron Man), Downey is rich, handsome but deeply flawed in reality. It is also very satisfying to see someone so damaged by drugs and jail pulling himself up by the shoelaces and reaching the top again. The villain of the show is another flawed America hero, Mickey Rourke, as Russian baddy Whiplash. The story is really hard to swallow but you have just got to enjoy it. There are so many great effects and a lot of male and female eye candy. What do you expect, it's a comic book – but this time there are a lot of 30+ women watching and the film threatens to knock even Dark Knight off the record books.

Parks' triple substitution a master move the right was met by Beckford's powerful text-book header, only for Darren Randolph to react instinctively in turning the certain equaliser over the bar.

In eight games since taking over from Rob Elliot, the big Irish keeper has conceded only four goals, as the last line in a defence which compensates for the Addicks' own difficulty in scoring. The statistics are impressive and equally no accident.

Randolph had already shown his excellence as early as the second minute, after Sam Sodje carelessly underhit a routine backpass. Charging off his line, he closed the distance between himself and Gradel like a runaway freight train; the fleetfooted forward's hasty shot was batted down by a huge left paw and Sodje was off the hook.

That was the only foot put wrong by the wholehearted centre back, who provided the outstanding Christian Dailly with sterling support. Alongside them, full backs Frazer Richardson and Gary one of them. Randolph's massive free kick skewed off Noel Kilkenny's head and was returned from the far post by Sam for Akpo Sodje to head powerfully goalward, where a desperate Naylor finished the job for him. At the other end, they were suddenly "not singing anymore". Not so much as a dirge.

The manager's performance wasn't too shabby, either. With just over 20 minutes remaining, Phil Parkinson showed a riverboat gambler's instincts, his triple substitution unleashing the fresh legs of Akpo

When calm was restored, Charlton's dogged refusal to bow to the inevitable had kept alive the possibility of automatic promotion. It's out of their hands, of course, and they are probably bound for the play-offs, where this resilient side, clearly behind their underrated manager, will be a tough nut for any rival to crack. Any rival. Bar none.

With just over 20 minutes remaining, Phil Parkinson showed a riverboat gambler's instincts, his triple substitution unleashing the fresh legs of Akpo Sodje, David Mooney and Reid on to a wilting United defence Borrowdale were soundly professional, while Jose Semedo was an implacable shield. Even striker Deon Burton made a vital defensive contribution, his heroic block denying Neill Collins moments before the break.

Sodje, David Mooney and Reid on to a wilting United defence already softened up by Burton, Nicky Forster and Therry Racon, not to mention the dancing feet of Lloyd Sam.

The cracks widened until Naylor fell through

FAIRLY PLEASED Charlton Athletic's Akpo Sodje is swamped by team-mates after his goal-earning effort while (below) big brother Sam Sodje sends a header over the bar during a pulsating game that kept alive Charlton's hopes of automatic promotion

WITH what turned out to be impeccable timing, the roar erupted in a sardine-packed away end, then gathered momentum before swelling in volume to rock the rafters. Millwall were two down at Tranmere and the visiting fans could smell promotion.

"We only need one goal," they implored, to the tune of "Those were The Days" and, fair play to them, their mathematics were precise. One goal would be enough. But this was neither one of those days nor one of those goals. At least, not in the way they imagined.

On the field, Leeds United's players did their best to respond. Elusive young Max Gradel had certainly done his bit, the missed early chance presented to him by Sam Sodje's error long since forgotten though costly in retrospect.

Gradel's low volleyed cross from the right byline picked out surprising substitute Jermaine Beckford at the near post but the 30-goal striker made a hash of the opportunity.

Gradel and Beckford would feature again before this pulsating clash was over, by which time the goal (or not quite the goal) their supporters craved registered briefly on the electronic scoreboard before disappearing as technology succumbed to pressure.

Akpo Sodje was initially identified as its scorer until, with almost savage irony, it became apparent that United captain Richard Naylor had headed Sodje Jr's effort into his own net.

That wasn't exactly what Leeds' pumped-up fans had had in mind but then it's wise to be careful what you wish for. The hiss of air escaping balloons was unmistakable.

Naylor's 88th-minute own goal was not the end of his personal involvement in the hectic closing drama. His deliberate handball on the edge of the penalty area not only earned him a booking but gave away the free kick, which Charlton's own impact substitute Kyel Reid bent brilliantly against the inside of the right post, with Shane Higgs beaten.

The atmosphere was now electric and Gradel rose splendidly to the occasion. His perfectly-flighted cross from
